Four-Year Effort Yields New Child Care Center

By CHERY LORRAINE

UNO's new Child Care Center will open its doors to children of students, faculty and staff Aug. 25, said Joyce Kinney, its recently appointed director.

"We can care for up to 63 children at once," said Kinney, who was appointed July 17. "They will be involved in large and small group activities, as well as language-based individual play." The facility includes areas for art, house-keeping activities, quiet play, and a place for using building blocks, said Kinney.

"A child may choose what he wants to do, where, and with whom," she said. "Then he'll tell a staff member about his plans. When he's finished, he'll return to that person, and together they'll review what he's done."

A child care and development library for parents will also be developed this year, she said. A wooden play structure is being planned.

"Right now, there's a hard-surfaced place outside for the children to ride tricycles," said Kinney. "There's also a sand and gravel area." The Child Care Center is in Annex 47 on the far west side of the UNO campus.

The need for on-campus day care was recognized during the 1981-82 school year by the Women's Resource Center, said Rita Henry, assistant to Richard Hoover, vice chancellor for Educational and Student Services.

Florence Langford, Student President/Regent during that year, started the efforts for Student Senate funding, said Henry. "We couldn't have a child care center without the continued support of the senate," she said.

"We're committed to paying all construction costs," said Greg Gunderson, Student Senate treasurer. "We started with $50,000 that had

Charge Against Professor Dismissed Hinton: Stewart Resigns

By KEVIN McANDREWS

A UNO Criminal Justice professor earlier charged in an alleged office burglary in Lincoln July 17 has resigned, David Hinton said Monday. The charge was dismissed Tuesday.

"I have been informed that Paul Stewart will resign his position with the department of Criminal Justice effective the beginning of the fall term," said Hinton, dean of the College of Public Affairs and Community Service. "We are making arrangements to cover his assigned classes."

Stewart, 48, has taught courses in criminal law and criminal proceedings at UNO for a year, and is working toward a masters' degree in law from the University of Wisconsin.

"At this stage it is my understanding that Mr. Stewart will be leaving Nebraska, should he be able to work out his problems with the legal authorities," said Hinton. "Mr. Stewart has expressed embarrassment and remorse over the situation."

Stewart has been accepted into a program that would allow him to perform community service in exchange for dismissal of the alleged burglary charge. A Lancaster County Attorney spokesman said Wednesday Stewart would participate in the program, which is open to people without a criminal record, who have not been charged with a violent crime.

Stewart could not be reached for comment.

Boosalis: Tax Increase Could Help Support Education

By CHERY LORRAINE

Helen Boosalis, the Democratic candidate for governor, said Friday she favors the 1 percent sales tax increase that is part of LB 662.

"Given the fall in land values, we have the following choices if we want to maintain quality education," said Boosalis at a press conference held at UNO. "We can either increase the property tax burden on land owners, or we can substitute revenues from another tax."

"I prefer the substitution of a 1 percent sales tax in order to give property tax relief. The property owner is already overburdened."

Voters will decide whether to retain or repeal LB 662 in November.

"Nebraska's education system is what many states are trying to achieve," she said. "We must share the burden of furnishing that education."

A goal of her administration would be that property, sales and income taxes would each contribute one-third of tax revenues, she said.

—Daniel Koenig

Helen Boosalis

"We can fulfill these promises without an overall tax increase," she said.

Boosalis also said the governor's office should provide leadership for common planning between public and private colleges and universities in the state.

"I will establish such a planning and decision process so that the governor's office, the Unicameral and the institutions of higher education have a forum in which to plan and pursue excellence together," she said. "Let me emphasize, though, that establishing a cooperative planning process is not the same thing as running it. I will lead, not dictate."

"The first function of this planning group would be to establish an appropriate common data system to be used in planning and decision-making."

The system would include objectives of particular institutions and departments, methods used to measure their effectiveness and performance, and indicators of success for research departments, she said.

Boosalis said she would like to see more cooperation between industry and Nebraska's community colleges. For example, she said, a network between industry and technical education centers could be established to "use the bond process most effectively" if new technological training centers are needed.

Boosalis outlined plans for using alternative funding sources for higher education:

"First, the state and higher education need to cooperate to seek out more research grants from national foundations and the federal government."

"Second, I'll work with industry and the federal government to establish a consortia of industry and higher education institutions."

"Third, I'll use my national reputation to establish more endowed chairs for faculty members in both our public and private colleges and universities," she said.

Students Beware: Academic Advising Nothing to Take Lightly

By CHERYL POTEPA

Four days before he was to graduate, Alphonso McKnight sat in the Communication Chairman's office wondering if he would.

Fortunately, this story will be likely to have a happy ending, according to Larry Winkler, McKnight's advisor from the College of Continuing Studies.

But UNO students should beware — academic advising is nothing to be taken lightly.

"I think he's gonna be able to graduate," said Winkler. "What happened is we accidentally logged in a class he repeated as two classes."

But the broadcast production major didn't think the mistake was his fault. "I signed up for three courses this summer, but then I dropped one because they said I was going to go over the number of hours I needed for graduation. My advisor had already sent me a letter congratulating me on my graduation, and then the next day they say I can't. The worst part is they acted like it was my fault," said McKnight.

But according to John Farr, assistant vice-chancellor of academic affairs, it could well be the students' fault if they don't graduate at the time expected.

"Any system checked by individuals opens up possibilities for human errors, but I don't necessarily think it's the system that is at fault. There are a relatively small number of people who get caught in a situation where they won't graduate, but the answer is for students to be more careful and take some responsibility for their own schedule," said Farr.

Farr said each college has responsibility for handling advising "their own way."

Some colleges have full-time staffs who do nothing but advise, such as the College of Education and the College of Business, while other colleges use professors as advisors twice a year, like the College of Arts and Sciences.

"Some colleges have a mechanized system while some are more personalized, like ours," said journalism professor Warren Francke. "There's a trade-off, because if you're working with a student on a personal level you are more aware of their needs, but on the other hand, the system requirements undergo enormous changes year after year that make it very difficult for us to keep up with."

But Arts and Sciences dean John Newton said the college sends out a handbook updating requirements and "hopes the advisors read it. We even have training programs every two years," said Newton.

Although Arts and Sciences does have three people in the dean's office that act as freshman advisors, Newton said he "feels very strongly that faculty major advising is preferable."

However, Richard Flynn, dean of the College of Education, said he sees the Central advising office in his college as "servicing the student's needs much better than the inconsistent programs they had in the past."

But no matter what college students are enrolled in, how do students insure they won't have any problems when it comes time to don cap and gown?

According to admissions counselor Janet Swotek, students should "by all means see an advisor."

"Even though students have a lot of information available to them, they might not be getting exactly where they want to go unless they have some guidance," said Swotek.

Here are a few of Swotek's suggestions:

- See an advisor early.
- Obtain a free catalog from the registrar's office.
- Obtain fact sheets and suggested schedules from the admissions office.
- Get a worksheet for your program and "fill in all the slots."
- Make arrangements to visit your dean's office after you have completed 91 credit hours to make sure you're on the right track.

The 83-85 undergraduate catalog reads "an agreed-upon matriculation plan must be approved in writing and filed in the office of a cognizant collegial dean on an official form no later in the semester in which an undergraduate student will complete 105 hours of accepted credit."

"It's kind of like a partnership," said Winkler of the academic advising process. "Students need to lay the ground work for themselves and then advisors should tell them how to get where they're going."

UNO's New Smokies, a la Campus Security

Sgt. Jim Kemp of UNO Campus Security rides ready for speeders with a radar gun mounted on the dashboard. A 25-mph-speed limit will be enforced by security on the circulation road. Traffic will be monitored by one officer, and he will radio ahead to an awaiting officer who will pull the violator aside and issue a $10 moving-violation citation.

"There will be a $10 fine whether you're going 26 mph, or 95 mph," said Lt. Paul Kosel. "Hopefully nobody will be going 95 mph. That's a bit fast for around there."

Kosel said security has only one gun that they plan to move around to different positions along the circulation road.

"We've got to control the entire road, and not just one stretch," said Kosel.

But as always there were the moments of high comedy. Senator Bumpers of Arkansas, for example, informed the Senate as to what Mr. Moynihan was really up to: the Moynihan amendment, said Senator Bumpers, was "anti-world rather than anti-Russian." Never mind that "anti-Russian" is not what Mr. Moynihan had in mind — anti-Russian is what the Soviet state is

But farmers are said to feel a spiritual kinship with those around the world who likewise pursue the tilling of the earth, which begs a question of what it is American farmers think the Soviet Union has done for its farmers, lately or otherwise. A last notice: American farmers, woes or not, went in a good number to re-elect the incumbent president to whom the Soviet Union is, always, anathema. It is ironic, as Mr. Moynihan knows, to note this president agreed to the present transaction, against most every tenet to which he holds, tenets which Daniel Patrick Moynihan — following a two-year siesta — has rediscovered and is again defending, with the old zip which once raised temperatures at Turtle Bay.

UNO sororities held a reception at the Alumni House Sunday to get prospective greeks interested in joining their groups, which will begin formal rush on Aug. 17.

Greek Rush Stresses Responsibility as Well as Fun

By CHERYL POTEPA

If someone offered you a chance to "get involved, meet new people and make lasting friendships," wouldn't you think it sounded too good to be true?

UNO's sororities and fraternities sent out brochures promising just that to thousands of incoming freshmen this summer, and, according to Terry Foreman, student activities director, it is absolutely accurate.

"Not only do greeks learn responsibility in an organization, but they have business contacts after graduation. Greeks are also more apt to join other organizations here on campus," said Foreman, who joined Pi Kappa Alpha when he attended UNO. And for the past month, greeks have been busy "rushing" new members.

"A lot of students come to UNO with big dreams of college life, and since UNO is a commuter campus, they wind up being disappointed. The greek system gives people a chance to get to know other students," said Carolyn McFarland, student activities advisor and an alumni of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

"It's really scary starting school and hardly knowing anyone. I thought getting involved in a sorority would make it easier," said Jami Hutchinson. Hutchinson, who is from Red Oak, Iowa, will be a freshman this fall.

Millard North graduate Chris Lorensen said she just wants to get involved. She plans to join student government and band, as well as a sorority.

Both freshmen will go through formal rush Aug. 17 through 20. Four sororities participate in this rush, each using one of the annexes east of Arts and Sciences Hall as a "house" for the week.

The sororities also had a picnic with the fraternities in July and a reception Aug. 10 to "get more people involved in the greek system in general. We weren't rushing any group in particular," said Janet Alden, Panhellenic vice president (Panhellenic is the governing body of the sorority system).

This year, UNO fraternities are participating in a "dry rush" between Aug. 6 and Sept. 7. Fraternities planned all chapter receptions on the first and last day of the event to show unity.

"We're really proud of this because we had no pressure from the university to do it," said Interfraternity Council president Doug Winklemann. Winklemann is also a UNO Ambassador and a member of the Society of Manufacturing Engineers. (Interfraternity Council is the governing body for the fraternities.)

Winklemann, a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon, said the decision to hold a dry rush was unanimous. He said he hopes people will see the greek system as more responsible because of the action.

Foreman said he was supportive of the idea for several reasons. "Sometimes we have retention problems in the groups because people think they're going to join and just drink beer, they're not joining for the positive aspects. Also, the new drinking age (21) means most rushees are underage, so it's illegal anyway," said Foreman.

Fraternities usually rush new members at clubhouse parties, or their houses if they have them, or skiing or swimming parties.

Foreman said he is not interested in tearing down any stereotypes with the action, however.

"Stereotypes aren't necessarily bad. It's OK to say one group are jocks as long as you realize they also have good GPAs," said Foreman. "There's all different types of people in the greek system, people who want leadership skills, people interested in sports and people who want to go to parties, but very few do everything."

Greeks are also involved with philanthropies on a regular basis. Big Brothers, the American Lung Association, Honey Sunday, MS and MD are only a few of the causes that the greeks support.

But, Winklemann said, the question he hears often from prospective pledges is "what are you going to do to me?"

The days of hazing are over, said Foreman. "They have no idea what hazing really means," he said. "I stood in a trash can with a tray on my head acting like Napoleon. I don't think people would stand for that any more."

Winklemann said he hopes that if people even have the slightest interest in joining, they would attend the all-fraternity meeting at the Alumni House Sept. 7 to "find out what it's all about."

Black Rush Scheduled

Sept. 6 has been tentatively scheduled for a formal rush by the black greek chapters on campus. This will be the first year these groups have had a formal rush. Foreman said Barbara Hewins-Maroney, special programs coordinator, put the event together.

Foreman said these groups are "historically black" and "provide an opportunity for people to choose which group they would like to belong to. It by no means says black people can't go through the traditionally white greek chapter rush."

Most UNO greek chapters don't have "a house" because the area around campus is zoned for residential use, said Foreman.

"Nobody wants to drive off campus to a house between classes," said McFarland.

Instead, the greeks use the Donut Hole in the Student Center as a gathering place. Each group sets up a table as a meeting area.

"The greek system does a lot of good things," said McFarland. "It's just that people don't hear about the 400 good things as often as they do the one bad thing that may happen in a year."

"We stress good grades," said Alden. She belongs to Chi Omega sorority, which requires a 2.5 GPA to join. "I think the greek system helps to get people more interested in coming to school in the first place, because there's some opportunity to have a little fun on top of going to class."

THE HOW'S, WHAT'S, WHERE'S WHO'S and WHY'S of THE STUDENT ACTIVITIES OFFICE . . .

THE WHAT'S

the Student Activities Office is your chance to get involved as you can register clubs and organizations, inquire about involvement in the agencies, sign-up for fraternities and sororities and find out what is happening at UNO. The activities that the SPO (Student Programming Organization) sponsors are many including movies every weekend, entertainment every other Wednesday afternoon to major concerts and guest speakers.

The HOW's of the student activities the easiest part is to get involved. If you would like to gain an education in friendship, personal development, leadership and of course fun.

Stop by the Office of Student Activities on the Second Floor of the Student Center
or call 554-2711

THE WHO'S

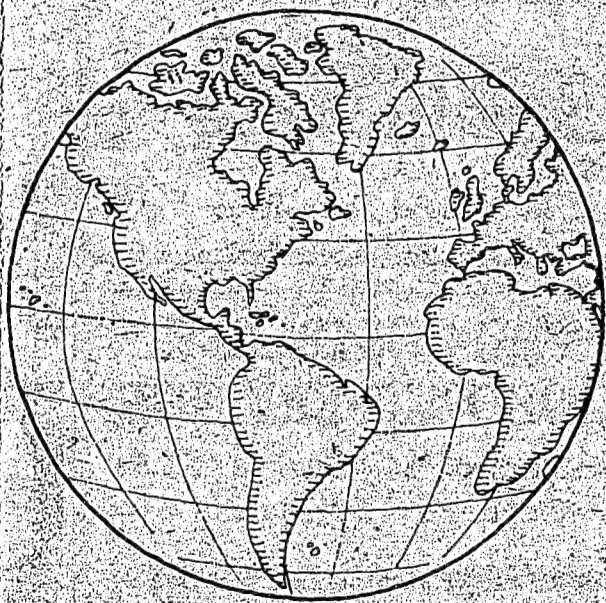

UNO has a club, organization or agency for every type of student. There are more than 110 recognized student organizations including six fraternities and nine fraternities, student government, disabled student agency, international student center, women's resource services, and student programming organization. There is something for almost everyone, but in case you don't see an organization that fits your needs you can easily form one.

THE WHY'S

a college education is not only found in the classroom but also outside through co-curricular activities. The statistics proved that those students who are involved in college activities are more marketable to employers than those who just attend classes.

THE WHERE'S

the hub of social activities on the UNO campus is the Milo Bail Student Center (MBSC). The Student Activities Office is located on the second floor of the MBSC and is the answer to all extra-curricular life at UNO.

WATCH FOR THE GRAND OPENING OF THE NEW INTERNATIONAL CENTER IN MID- SEPTEMBER!!

One of the most interesting things about UNO is the fact that there are over 300 international students from over 50 countries. Presently on display are colorful flags from 25 different countries. The new grand opening will include programs and events.

Why? Consider this: More students increase their scores after taking a Kaplan prep course than after taking anything else.

Why? Kaplan's test-taking techniques and educational programs have 50 years of experience behind them. We know students. And we know what helps boost their confidence and scoring potential.

So if you need preparation for the: LSAT, GMAT, MCAT, GRE, DAT, ADVANCED MEDICAL BOARDS, TOEFL, NURSING BOARDS, NTE, CPA, INTRO TO LAW, SPEED READING, or others, call us.

Omaha Theaters Offer Variety for Fall Season

Searching for a fall alternative to television? Try live theater. Local theater companies have announced their productions for the fall 1986 season. Shows include several old favorites and a few unfamiliar ones.

Norton Theater

The Nebraska State Repertory Company, which performs at the Norton Theater, begins its fall season with The Member of the Wedding showing Sept. 12 through 28.

Dracula will be presented Oct. 12 through Nov. 1. The holiday classic, Babes in Toyland, will run Nov. 28 through Dec. 21. For ticket information and times, call the Norton Theater, 5021 Underwood Ave., at 551-7360.

Grande Olde Players

The Grande Olde Players, a theater troupe consisting of members whose ages are "55 or better," will open the fall season with The Legend of Sleepy Hollow from Nov. 7 through 23.

The remainder of the season consists of I'll Be Back Before Midnight, March 6 through 23, and A 1980's Look at the 1890s, June 12 through 28. For times and tickets, call 551-2891.

Center Stage

Opening the fall season at the Center Stage is Purlie. The play begins its run Aug. 22 and continues on the weekends through Sept. 21.

The LaFerm Williams Center, headquarters for the Center Stage, is located at 3010 R St. For reservations, call 444-6199.

Omaha Ballet

The Omaha Ballet will open its season Oct. 3 and 4 with a repertory performance of three small ballets.

X Marks the Spot, Clowns and Others, and The Firebird are the scheduled ballets, each featuring a different guest choreographer. The music, spotlighting a single piano, will be live.

The annual holiday favorite, The Nutcracker, will be performed Dec. 12, 13, and 14.

For reservations, call the Omaha Ballet, 346-7332.

Omaha Community Playhouse

The Omaha Community Playhouse is beginning its fall season with the addition of a second stage.

The second stage will house the "Fonda-McGuire" series. The series is named after Henry Fonda and Dorothy McGuire, two veteran Playhouse performers before embarking on acting careers in Hollywood.

Opening the season on the main stage will be Can Can from Sept. 5 through Oct. 4.

Following the musical will be an Agatha Christie thriller, Witness for the Prosecution, from Oct. 24 through Nov. 15. Concluding the fall season will be A Christmas Carol, with performances scheduled Nov. 28 through Dec. 20.

Opening the Fonda-McGuire series Sept. 12 through 28 will be an original adaptation of The Hunchback of Notre Dame.

Next in the series will be the 1940s Radio Hour, featuring the music of the big band era. The musical revue will run Oct. 30 through Nov. 16.

For reservations, call the Playhouse box office, 553-0800.

accumulated in a special fund over several years.

"Construction costs will total about $62,000," he said.

Money for start-up costs, including staff salaries and supplies, is being loaned to the center from the Student Center, said Henry. "The center should become self-supporting," she said, "and we'll pay back the loan in a year or so."

Child care services cost $50 per week for full-time care, and $1.50 per hour for part-time care. A discount of $10 per week is available for families with two or more children.

"Fees will include breakfast, lunch, and a mid-afternoon snack for the children," she said.

The Child Care Center will serve children aged 18 months through 6 years. Hours will be 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Kinney Appointed Care Center Director

When you meet Joyce Kinney, director of the new Child Care Center at UNO, you'll probably notice her bright blue eyes, and her ever-present smile. She often wears a gold charm—the abstract figure of a child—on a chain around her neck.

"I guess it's my symbol," she said with a chuckle. "I've been working with children for as long as I can remember. My first job was teaching Sunday school when I was 12 or 13."

Kinney, 40, was selected by a six-person committee that included four faculty and staff members and two students from on-campus organizations.

Kinney began her career as a kindergarten teacher in Des Moines, Iowa, where she earned her bachelor's degree in elementary education from Drake University.

Kinney has also taken graduate courses at UNO.

Since 1979, Kinney has directed the Sunshine 'n Rainbows Child Care Center, which she founded in Red Oak. She is also training to be a validator for the Academy of Early Childhood Programs, a national agency established to accredit day care centers and preschools.
